OVERVIEW OF SECTION 504

Definition of Disability under Section 504

Under Section 504, a person is considered to have a disability if that person (29U.S.C.Sec.706(8)):

- (1) has a physical or mental impairment which substantially limits one or more of the person's major life activities or bodily functions
- (2) has a record of such impairment, or
- (3) is regarded as having such and impairment.

The Act defines a physical or mental impairment as:

- a. any physiological disorder or condition, cosmetic disfigurement, or anatomical loss affecting one or more of the following body systems: neurological, musculoskeletal; special sense organs; respiratory, including speech organs, cardiovascular; reproductive; digestive; genitourinary; hemic and lymphatic; skin and endocrine; or
- b. any mental or psychological disorder, such as mental retardation, organic brain syndrome, emotional or mental illness, and specific learning disabilities

Major life activities include, but are not limited to: Caring for one's self, performing manual tasks, walking, breathing, seeing, hearing, speaking, learning, working, reading, concentrating, thinking, sleeping, eating, lifting, bending and communicating.

Bodily functions include, but are not limited to: the immune system, normal cell growth, digestive, bowel, and bladder functions, respiratory function, circulatory function, endocrine function, reproductive function, brain and neurological function.

Episodic conditions or those that are in remission would be considered a disability if the condition would substantially limit a major life activity or bodily function if not in remission. Temporary or transitory impairments are not covered unless the impairment is substantial when considering factors such as the anticipated duration (i.e. generally should last in excess of six (6) months) and extent to which there is a limitation on a major life activity.

Some disabling conditions identified in court decisions include: impulse control disorder, school phobia, intermittent explosive disorder, anxiety disorder, AIDS, HIV, Hepatitis B, chronic fatigue syndrome, oppositional defiant disorder, post-traumatic stress disorder and obsessive compulsive disorder.

Under Section 504

“Section 504 does not require a public school to provide students with disabilities with potential-maximizing education, only reasonable accommodations that give those students the same access to the benefit of a public education as all other students.” J.D. by J.D. v. Pawlet School District, 33 IDELR 24 (2nd Cir. 2000). A Section 504 Plan does not guarantee success but instead guarantees an equal opportunity for success.

Information and Rights Regarding Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973

Section 504 is an Act which prohibits discrimination against persons with a disabling condition in any program receiving Federal financial assistance. The Act defines a person with a disability as anyone who:

2. has a record of such impairment; or
3. is regarded as having such an impairment

In order to fulfill its obligation under Section 504, the GENERIC Public School District recognizes a responsibility to avoid discrimination in policies and practices regarding its personnel and students. No discrimination against any person with a disability will knowingly be permitted in any of the programs and practices in the school system.

The school district has specific responsibilities under the Act, which include the responsibility to identify, evaluate, and if the child is determined to be eligible under Section 504, to provide an appropriate accommodation plan.
